THE BOYS OF AUTUMN

As summer makes its transit to winter, a small Kentucky town and its high school football team live out the time-honored rituals of their season of glory

By Alan Richman

Even as progress comes to the hills and hollows of Appalachia, bringing such necessities as European body-wrap salons to the towns and Brie en croûte to the malls, one thing never seems to change: the fortunes of the Pikeville (Ky.) High School football team. Last season the Panthers won all 14 games and averaged just under 50 points a game. This season they were undefeated again going into the annual big game against their archrival, Paintsville. Such heroes have made head coach Hillard Howard, 41, about the most respected man in eastern Kentucky never to make a couple of million dollars in coal.

"We have to take care of Hillard. He takes care of our kids," says Ralph Roop, a Cadillac salesman and father of a 270-lb. lineman, handing over the keys to a 1983 Fleetwood Brougham d'Elegance, once owned by an elderly widow and passed along to Howard at cost. The coach walks around it once, checks the gas tank (full), starts the car up and heads for home, spitting H.B. Scott's chewing-tobacco juice into a paper coffee cup as he drives, not a drop marring the plush blue interior. "I'm still not used to a car with good brakes," he apologizes as the Cadillac lurches to a halt at an intersection. "Before I started getting all these nice new cars, I had to hang one foot out the door to stop." The Cadillac looks real nice in the driveway, shaded by a willow tree and parked next to the 1987 Pontiac Bonneville that the grateful people of Pikeville bought Howard last year, right after his team won the Division A state championship.

Of all the love affairs in sports, none is quite so special as that of a small town with its football team. Maybe it's the weather that does it, the combination of autumn leaves and summer grass, the air as crisp as a tight spiral. Maybe it's the sacrifice, the glory of young men throwing their bodies into the struggle, asking nothing for it but a letter to sew on a funny jacket that some of them will wear the rest of their lives. Only in football are the memories so vivid. Marley Newsom, 62, a Pikeville barber who was quarterback of the 1941 team, remembers "crying like a baby down on the field" the day his team suffered its sole defeat of the season. Only in football are the bonds so enduring. Henry Stratton, 63, a tackle in the '40s, has eight lawyers in his local firm, and six of them played football for Pikeville.

As one autumn follows another, small-town people watch their children grow up. They see them as grade-schoolers, playing pickup football behind the bleachers. They see the same kids years later, competing under the Friday-night lights. Sometimes the kids end up playing a better game of football than even the most bright-eyed booster would dare to expect. "People were always telling us they couldn't wait until we were juniors and seniors," says Greg Hackney, Pikeville's star halfback. "When we were seventh and eighth graders, only three or four teams even scored on us, and we were playing middle schools with ninth graders." Most of the seniors on the Pikeville team have been starting for six years, on various teams, and in all that time they dents in grades 10 through 12. A school like Henry Clay High in Lexington, rated Division 4A, has about 1,800 students in the same three grades. In 1987 the two teams played, and Pikeville won by 13 points. This year Pikeville won again, by 15. "For the last two years, Pikeville has probably been the best football team in the state, regardless of size," says Jake Bell, the coach at Henry Clay. "They have a run of really great athletes. It happens in small towns."

It seems that for the past few decades a lot of good things have happened in Pikeville. The hills of eastern Kentucky remain for the most part a bastion of fundamentalism and poverty, scattered with signs reading You Need Jesus and families living "on the draw." The dominant architecture of Appalachia is still double-wide trailers, although some of them are in yards with swimming pools. "We've got the haves and the have-nots, a mixture of $200,000 homes here and $20,000 shacks there," says Gene Davis, 57, a former Pikeville football coach, now the vice-president of a local bank. Pikeville is a pocket of relative prosperity in all this, a city of about 5,500 people that functions as a regional service center. If the local economy is not oblivious to the booms and busts of the coal industry, it is at least partly shielded from them.

It is shielded as well from some of the harshness of the times and the sense of old values quickly eroding. Coach Howard, who has a master's degree in education and doubles as the assistant principal at Pikeville, says the worst discipline problem he comes up against most days is tardiness. The secret of all this serenity might just be that every kid in town who is big enough or mean enough to get in trouble ends up playing football instead. There are more than 50 players on the squad, and each one who sticks out the season, no matter how little he plays, gets a letter. There isn't much else for a kid to do in Pikeville, except cruise the shopping plazas along the four-lane. "Football is everything here, for everyone, not just for us," says Hillard's wife, Marsha, 41. "You can't believe how football oriented the town is. We sort of coast through the summers, live for when the season starts."

To hear the people of Pikeville talk, last year's football team was the greatest thing to happen to eastern Kentucky since the coal boom of the early '70s, when prices went from $9 to $60 a ton in just 15 months. "The team last year was so good," says Howard, "that this year, after we won a game 37-0, I heard, 'Coach, what happened? What's wrong with them?' Every Friday, before the game, I hear, 'How many points are we going to score?' People have already decided we're going to win another championship."

People still talk about last year's game against Johns Creek, which was undefeated going into the game and touted a star defensive player nicknamed Doctor Death. Howard figured his team was in for a tough evening when he stopped at Jerry's restaurant, his favorite hangout in Pikeville, and heard from one of the waitresses that she had bet $10 on Johns Creek. "Hey, that's a day's pay," Howard says.

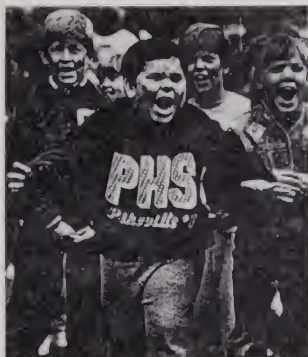

The stands in Badlands Field at Johns Creek were filled when the Pikeville team bus pulled up nearly two hours before game time, and there was such a throng of excited Johns Creek fans milling around on the field that the Pikeville players had to warm up in the end zone. As Johns Creek kicked off, the crowd was five deep along the sidelines. Pikeville's first play was an 85-yard touchdown run, and the Panthers went on to win 62-7. "I probably won't bet against Hillard this year," says Lisa Williamson, the waitress. When last year's team left for the state championship game, so many Pikeville fans followed them to Louisville that a sign was posted on a railroad trestle a few miles outside the city: Last One Out . . . Turn Off The Lights!

After the Panthers won the championship, the Pikeville Board of Education bought rings for every player. The

Asked by officials if he planned any trick plays, Howard replied, "The only time we do tricks is when we don't play right."

Pikeville Football Boosters chipped in, too, buying jackets and plaques for the team. The Boosters help pay for meals and hotel rooms whenever the team travels, and they operate a Polish sausage stand at Pikeville's annual Hillbilly Days festival, donating the proceeds toward the cost of equipment and a summer training camp. "We're there when they need something," says Jerry McNamee, a coal broker. "We'll get to work."

Naturally, such intense local interest does not make Howard's job anxiety free. He keeps a blood-pressure cuff and a stethoscope in the bottom drawer of his desk and two kinds of antacid medication (liquid and tablet) within easy reach. This season, he's trying to find reasons for worrying about his offense, which was averaging 41.8 points per game going into the showdown with Palmtown, down from 49.6 last season. His "Big Dawg" defense, though, was still grinding opponents into puppy chow. Named for 275-lb. all-state tackle and linebacker Tim Honaker, who started barking in practice one day, the defensive team was giving up only about seven points a game, and most of those were coming in the second half, when the starters usually stay on the bench. "I actually don't mind coming out too much,"

Chip Roop, cousin of offensive tackle Jeff, gives a scream for the team at a feverish elementary school rally.

says Jody Brown, the leading pass receiver on a team that seldom passes. "You can lay back, watch the jayvee play, wave to people in the stands, try to meet girls."

David Cox, the starting fullback, and Bobby Deramus, who starts at halfback on offense and noseguard on defense, say that to keep runaway games interesting, the offense sometimes devises play variations in the huddle, a form of spontaneity that does not have the blessing of the coach. "We've been at it so many years we know just about when we're going to get a touchdown," Deramus says. "Our offense will decide that we should take four plays to score, so that's what we do." Adds Cox: "Sometimes I get aggravated when we're playing littler teams. The first play, we score. We kick off, they fumble, and the kickoff team takes it in. Sometimes I loaf so I can play more. I know when we're way ahead at halftime I'll have to take my pads off." Cox, who is primarily used as a blocking back and usually grades out as the most efficient member of the offense, is so good-natured and easygoing that he has become the coach's nemesis, invulnerable to motivational goading.

"He's the worst fullback in America," sputters Howard loud enough for the passing Cox to hear. "All the guys have girls who wear their jerseys. Cox has to pay a girl to wear his." ("You know," says Cox of his coach, "he's like a good friend.")

Howard was raised in a coal camp near the Virginia border, one of 14 children of a man who worked 41 years in the mines. "It was tough," Howard says, "but we had enough to eat and we had nice clothes." The players call him Fred Flintstone—when he slouches, the resemblance is uncanny—and he rules with a management style that is a mixture of affection, devotion, sarcasm and left hooks. He was a two-time West Virginia Golden Gloves middleweight boxing champion, and when players misbehave, they are invited into the gym. "I had to go in about four times with him," says Sean Neeley, a 6' 3", 235-lb. lineman nicknamed Captain Redneck for his propensity for getting into brawls. "He'll let you hit him, so you start thinking you're good, and you get careless, and then he pops you. That fourth time will be my last. I got one good shot on him, a lucky one, and then he beat me to death."

Howard's son Jason, a quarterback on the team, describes his father as arrogant, willful and too stubborn to ever admit he's wrong, but he adds, forgivingly, "You learn to like him the way he is, and he loves every player to death." On the evening before the state championship game, after his players were in bed, Howard switched on the television set and heard a sportscaster announcing the names of all the players on the annual Associated Press all-state football team. "Three of ours were named to the first team and one made second," Howard says, "but I was afraid the kids who didn't make it would be upset. So at 5 a.m. I went downstairs and bought all the papers in the lobby and for three blocks around the hotel, and I hid them in my room, mostly under the bed. At game time, no one knew who had made the team, not even our assistant coaches."

Only one coach in eastern Kentucky has a record to rival Hillard Howard's, and that is Walter Brugh, 62, of Paintsville High, who has won more games over his 32-year career than all but one other coach in the state. "Hillard and I are friends," says Brugh, whose own team was undefeated going into the game against Pikeville this year. Friendships like this one bring back memories of the Hatfields and the McCoys. Says Jeamy Holbrook, the quarterback for Paintsville: "Coach Brugh would rather beat Coach Howard than eat."

Paintsville, which has about the same population as Pikeville, wasn't nearly as blessed with the federal funds that flowed from Lyndon Johnson's Great Society programs. Or, as Brugh puts it, "We had to work for our money." Paintsville is picturesque, more like a small town is supposed to look, with tree-lined residential streets and a dairy bar across the road from the high school that is painted in team colors and calls itself the Home of the Tigers. Three years ago, when Paintsville was on the way to a second-place finish in the state football tournament, the Tigers defeated Pikeville 48-21. The prevailing view is that Paintsville, which scored its 48 points after being down 21-0, ran up the score.

"With a minute and 27 seconds left to play, they were still throwing the ball," fumes Howard.

"We were just trying to play football," smiles Brugh.

Last year Pikeville won 59-0. This time Pikeville was accused of running up the score.

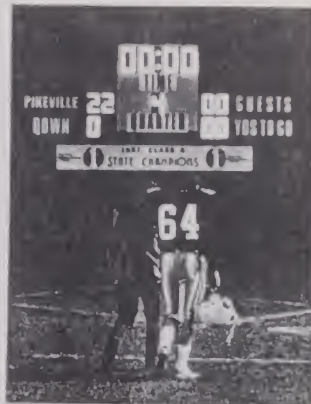

"What do you think?" asks Brugh, not smiling now. Howard recalls that after Pikeville won the state championship, Brugh was one of his few coaching acquaintances who didn't call with congratulations. Going into this year's Pikeville-Paintsville game, neither coach was predicting victory. They sounded as if they weren't even sure their teams would show up.

"Maybe once we see them, we'll turn and run," said Brugh.

"They're undefeated," Howard reminded his players after practice one afternoon. "If that scares you and you need to be home the night we play, let me know, and I'll give you the day off."

On the morning of the game, Howard received a telephone call from his brother, Eddie, 55, who said he wasn't coming to the game because Paintsville wasn't tough enough. "He's trying to aggravate me, that's what he's trying to do," said Howard. Later, when the coach stopped in at Jerry's for his usual pregame iced tea, a former player came over and said the betting line on the game had Pikeville favored by 29 points. "I should put $20 on Paintsville myself," Howard said in disgust.

A couple of hours before kickoff, he went home to change clothes. He came out of the bedroom wearing a short-sleeved white polo shirt and shimmering maroon slacks, the Pikeville colors. He had on his game face, the short-tempered one.

"Marsha, do I need a coat?" he asked.

"Yes, it's freezing," she said. "You should be wearing a long-sleeved shirt, too."

"Marsha, don't tell me what to wear."

The confrontation that Howard was calling the Thrilla in Pikeville was drawing near. When the coach arrived at the field, he found fullback Cox in the school parking lot, adjusting the air filter on his Trans Am instead of preparing for the game. "Will you stop dinking with that junk," he yelled, waving for Cox to get inside. Once dressed, the players filed into a world history classroom, jamming their bodies behind desks not designed for 200-pounders in pads. On the blackboard was an outline of the rise and fall of Rome, but Howard provided his own history lesson, reminding his team of Paintsville's humiliating 48-21 win. "I don't want that ever to leave your minds," he warned.

Four times that night, Paintsville drives deep into Pikeville territory. Four times, Paintsville has first down and goal to go. The Big Dawg goal-line defense, so tough a pickup truck couldn't go through it, holds every time. Pikeville wins 22-0. The next morning, Howard goes down to Jerry's for breakfast. As he steps into the restaurant, he hears it, just as he knew he would. "Hillard," someone asks, "what went wrong last night?" □

What is a friend? These may be four very plain and simple words, but the answers to this question are endless. A good definition for a friend is a person who will listen and understand your problems and someone who will keep your secrets confidential.

When asked about friendships, our two editors added some of their personal bests for a real friend. Shannon Neeley's definition of a true friend is "someone who won't talk about you behind your back and someone you can trust". Debbie Altman's idea is "a person who is around for the bad times as well as the good!"

Hazel Burchett, a friend to all PHS students, will always be in our hearts and memories.

What are friends for? Well, Shane, you had better rethink the question before you get around Robert again!!

One "Big Family" at PHS is primarily due to the closeness of the athletic teams. The coaches and sponsors of all Panther squads stress the ideas of teamwork and friendship. So it's no wonder that Angela Forsyth found two such friendly football players as Timmy and Bobby.

Adding to the Fun

The teenage years are supposed to be fun and games, however some of our students not only study, they have part-time jobs. Although these students work, they also find time for their extra-curricular activities — whether sports, clubs, or just out having fun.

Having a job adds a touch of individuality to a person's character. These extraordinary girls and boys not only make spare money, they experience the reality of the world and can see just what it takes to achieve everything in their dreams!

FADS & FUN

The Wheel World!

In the Metropolis of Pikeville, Kentucky, there are hundreds of entertaining spots to hit during the weekend. People attend the theatre, dine in one of our many highly elegant restaurants, or they are "chauffered" around the town.

Just as everywhere else, the students at P.H.S. can not wait till they turn 16 so they can join in everyone's favorite pasttime — CRUISING! This art of driving around takes a lot of planning and preparation. Obviously, the first problem is the car. Before a car enters the stretch of road through the "PLAZA", it must be spotless, shiney, and blasting the latest music. Then of course, all passengers, especially the driver, have to look their very best, (just in case they drive by that Mr. or Mrs. Right). No matter what time, day or night, you can always find someone driving around.

There's a speed bump in the night!

The Plaza just wouldn't be the same without the sight of Franka Maynard's car. Here she is with Bethany Goff ready for a day of cruising and looking for her favorite truck or car.

Chris Hedges, Jody Brown, John Pinson, Robert Mims, and Tracy Thacker gather together behind Pizza Hut to prepare for a girl hunt — Don't worry guys this is the Plaza, the girls will be here soon!!

More Than A Name . . .

PIKEVILLE
PRIDE & JOY

More than a Name

Pikeville High School. Sure, that is the name of our school. But, Pikeville is more than that — more than a name. It is what we identify with: the state championship football team, the winning Academic team, and the Senior class. Ultimately we identify with all the students at Pikeville.

You aren't just a cheerleader, you aren't just a basketball player — you are a Panther. We do our best — We give it our all — We are successful. And success is more than always winning the game or placing first in a meet or competition. Success is trying our hardest, being committed, and taking pride in what you do — who you are, a Panther.

In the end, to be a Panther means — PRIDE. Pride in our school makes Pikeville more than a name.

Juniors Never Say Goodbye

Energetic juniors concluded 1988-89 by creating a world of black, white, and cerise with which to honor the senior class with the Prom "Never Say Goodbye".

Big Cookies, Katydids, and Stationery headed the list of money making activities the juniors used to raise money for the Prom.

Although the juniors "Never Say Goodbye", they have prepared themselves well to take the place of the graduating seniors for the 1989-90 school year.

Misty Daniels, Gina Damron, and Robyn Justice flaunt their snobbish looks to "too cool" Erik Melton and Kim Branham.

Who could be so important that Elizabeth Baird would actually take time off from class to talk to?

Don't be too upset Mr. Belcher, when I hit the saw it only got my hand not my whole arm.

Trying to avoid looking directly at the camera, Candice Tackett shows us her typing ability. Hey Candice, what's that pink thing on your arm?

Jason Howard, Ashley Altman, Cody Pauley, and Jason Justice are seen together as usual at the State football Championship.

Wonder what Cody Pauley is hanging around for? Could it be a date with that hunk?

Buck Shuenaman looks at the camera slyly. "Okay Buck, what did you do to the other teams locker room this time?"

Since Jason Howard wasn't at school today, that must be who Ashley Altman is talking to!

What could be so important that Vicky Coleman, Paula Whitt, and Belinda Esham are listening to? Maybe Mrs. Keene? I don't think so!

Elizabeth Baird, Paula Whitt, and Ashley Altman flash a smile for the camera after watching the second State Class A Championship football game won by Pikeville.

Sorry to bother you Lin, but we need a picture!

What's so funny? Something must be if Suzan Kinzer and Tonya Huffman are laughing!

What could it be that Cindy England and Kelly Love are looking down at? The underclassmen maybe?

The sophomore class participated in different events held by the school. The sophomores made up a portion of teams, cheerleaders, the band, academic team, and clubs to support the "Panther Quest: Be the Best".

Sophomore class officers are: President Jonda Harris, Vice-President Jess Baird, Secretaries Beth Templeman and Teresa Lockhart, Treasurer B.C. Newsome, Girl Sgt.-at-Arms DeNeice Hall, and Boy Sgt.-at-Arms Shannon Cochran.

Joe Thornsberry seems to be interested about something. Could he have found Mrs. Dye's grades on a computer disk?

Matt Gilliam seems to be overly enthused about something, while Mack Justice prays to get the heck out of this pep rally.

Jess Baird hurriedly tries to open his locker before being any later for class.

Todd Lakin looks a little sneaky. Could he be cheating??

Caught in the act again, Bethany Goff and Brittany Blair seek legal advice.

Kevin Stewart and Brian Johnson must be really anxious to watch TV, until being caught "borrowing" the big screen TV.

Two teammates, Shannon Cochran and Lance Rose, show us they are number one.

Jason Falls looks a little upset. Did Mrs. Keene win another argument again Jason?

What, we see Shad Owens working? This is definitely one of those Kodak moments.

"Hey guys, the water is 32 degrees Fahrenheit!! Just warm enough to go swimming!" exclaims Joy Bush.

Lori Mahan and Shae Crow seem actually interested in the game or is it the cute guy they've spotted down below?

As the freshman took their first steps into high school, they thought they were well prepared. Little did they know that high school courses were alot harder than Jr. High classes.

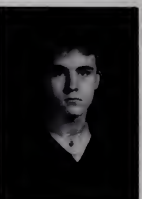

As the freshman took that gigantic step into high school, they were given the privilege of attending high school dances, such as Homecoming and Varsity. Many also began competing at the varsity levels of academics and athletics.

The "Class of '92" began their trek toward graduation and toward goals set for their lives after high school.

ACADEMICS

Different Means To The Same End . . . Academic Success

Creative

Booring!! The word bounced in the cavenous expanse of your hollow head. The teacher droned on endlessly. Your mind had become a baked potato.

Then suddenly from the depths of boredom and mindlessness came a sudden shock. A question! Of course the teacher had to call on you. Your comatose state was an open invitation for ridicule.

Your head popped up. Sweat rolled down your face. The class stared at you in dead silence. At this point you offered a small prayer: "God, with your infinite mercy, save me from this horrible predicament, please!"

A moment passed, and you realized the prayer was useless. Totally oblivious to the question, you blurted out "Yes"! That was indeed a rather strange answer to the cube root of 343.

Luckily, you weren't alone. Many a student had succumbed to the boredom blahs. They couldn't be avoided. Why? Two reasons. Either you were tired, or you just didn't care about the love life of Edgar Allen Post — or something like that. If you weren't one of the appressed during a lecture, you certainly knew those who were. You could see them across the room, falling out of their chairs, one by one.

These were the more serious cases of lecture boredom. Those of you who managed to stay awake truly felt a sense of accomplishment. You faced the lecture boredom battle head on — and won.

Sarah Walters and Beth Templeman have wandered off to Dreamland. Wonder who they're dreaming of now?

Sleeping Beauty, a.k.a. Eddie Yost has been found in Ms. Williamson's room. Hey, Eddie, did you really sleep for ten years?

Hey, David, does Mr. Runyon sing good bed time stories or was it his Courier Journals?

Listening

Paula Whitt must really be enjoying this lecture . . . she's the only one who could stay awake!!

Tracy Thacker illustrates the comfort and padding of the walls at P.H.S. they have been compared to Sealy — the posturepedic mattress.

These guys seem to think that lunch is even boring. Cheer up, guys! Next period you have Algebra II.

Coach Howard lectures the student body on one subject that is definitely not boring — "Panther Pride".

Pikeville

Pikeville High School has always been known for its excellence in academics. The 1988-89 school year was no exception.

The quick recall team was named the winner of various well-known tournaments throughout the year. PHS placed first in the Gatti's Bowl, third in the Fayette Co. Invitational, and first in both EKAC Tournament and Conference.

Although the quick recall team did very well throughout the year, the long hours of practice and hard work were finally worth it when they were named the overall quick recall champions in the state at the Governor's Cup Competition.

Though the quick recall team was well-known throughout the state, PHS also excelled in individual categories as well as the Future Problem Solving Competition.

Bryan Stalker took the third place in the state in the History exam. Bryan was the first person from Pikeville to score on the History exam.

The Future Problem Solving Team placed first in district and regional competition. They then went on to capture the runner-up trophy at the State Finals.

1988-89 was a great year for the PHS Academic Team. The team came together to prove that academics can be fun, and in doing so, captured the second place overall Governor's Cup Trophy.

The slogan for 1988-89 was "Panther Quest: Be the Best", and the Academic team definitely played an important part in our "Quest".

PHS's Future Problem Solving Team was awarded the second place in State Governor's Cup Competition. The team consisted of Leah Scott, Chris Hedges, Olivier Tribel, Della Justice, and Heather Robinson.

The Academic team poses with their Governor's Cup Runner-up trophy. PHS received this honor for two years in a row.

Academic Excellence

Bryan Stalker placed third on the History exam in State Governor's Cup Competition.

Neil Salyer seems very confused as Donald Tackett argues that the square root of 36 is no longer 6, but has now been officially changed to 15, (according to Donald, of course).

ORGANIZATIONS

The Pikeville High School Student Council has had a very successful and a most productive 1988-89 school year. Projects and services included the following: Sponsoring Penny Wars during Homecoming in Matt Pafunda's benefit, providing Big Brothers/Sisters service for all new students, operating the school bookstore, planning the Veteran's Day Assembly and wreath laying, and much more. The officers undoubtedly showed leadership and represented Pikeville High School with great dignity. This was an exciting year for FBLA. Publishing a school newspaper and increasing membership by twenty-five percent this year was only the beginning of this club's success. Twenty-one members competed at the Regional level at Morehead and many journeyed on to Louisville to compete at the state level. Shannon Neeley — President, Michelle Harmon — Vice-President, Tina Sampson — Secretary, Michelle Ratliff Adkins — Treasurer, and Kathy Roberts — Historian are responsible for the achievements of this outstanding club.

In addition to the monthly devotions held after school, the club attended the State FCA banquet held in Frankfort and hosted the 1st Annual Weekend of Champions here at Pikeville High School. Students of all ages, from Junior High to college students, attended the gathering. In fact, the event brought the state director of FCA to Pikeville. All the athletes in FCA will receive partial scholarships to the FCA National Campsite in Marshall, Indiana. Hillard Howard will also be attending the FCA coaches camp in North Carolina, payed for by our own FCA club.

Speaking of problems, the 1988-89 Journalism staff had their share of them. With last year's yearbook being late and then being returned to the factory twice, the staff had many pressures and demands. Hard work, dedication, and patience paid off though, as this year's staff pulled through with flying colors. This year's book is undoubtedly one of the best books produced from Pikeville High School. Shannon Neeley worked hard as the Editor-in-Chief, Debbie Altman — Color Editor, Becky Lockhart — Layout Editor, Pam Goble — Advertisement Editor, and Millie Mims as the Business Manager.

For their work throughout the year, the Key Club was named outstanding club in their division. The club received their trophy at the annual Key Club convention held in Knoxville, Tennessee, on April 7, 8, & 9, 1989. Roger May walked away with the name of outstanding Lt. Governor for the Kentucky-Tennessee District.

School and Community service projects such as adopting a grandparent, making food baskets for needy families, and wearing red ribbons campaigning against drugs were only a start for this group. Bike-a-thons, grab bags, assisting Kiwanis Club in Matt Pafunda's benefit, having a yard sale, and treating the staff to a delightful reception were all a part of the club's success.

Aaron Balsler & David Honaker — Co-Presidents, John Clemons — Vice President, Chris Dillion — Secretary, Shawn Newsome — Treasurer, and Matt Justice — Sg.-at-Arms, held their heads high for their club's many accomplishments.

During the 1988-89 football season every Wednesday after football practice, the Pikeville High School Pep Club awaited the arrival of the football players at the school with smiling faces and cookies and koolaid. This special treatment continued through the entire football season, with goody bags, pillowcases for away trips, delicious treats during lunch the day of games, and decorating houses for special games.

"When you wish upon a star,
Makes no difference who you are.
Anything your heart desires
Will come to you."

Although these words were first sung by Jimmy Cricket in hopes of turning Pinocchio into a little boy, these same words could have been sung by Coach Hillard Howard in hopes of turning the P.H.S. football team into a state championship team once again. Lucky for Jimmy Cricket and for Coach Howard "dreams really do come true."

The year started out with a bang as the Panther team rolled over Newport Catholic in the Pike County Bowl. This was only the first win, there were fourteen more to go as the Panthers went on to another undefeated season.

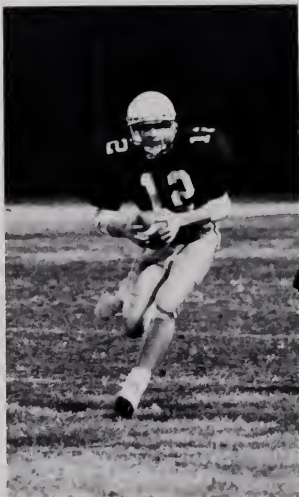

Although every member of the 88-89 team played a very important part in our "Quest to be the Best", the 23 seniors provided experience and maturity in the journey to the second straight Class A State Championship.

Pikeville has always been known for its winning tradition in football, and 1988-89 is no exception. With months of hard work, dedication, and the support of fans, young and old, Coach Howard and his football team have once again proved that "When you wish upon a star, dreams really do come true!"

Football

The city of Pikeville was once again "temporarily closed" as fans from all over the county followed the Panther football team on the road to Cardinal Stadium.

The Class A State Championship Game was played on December 2 with the Pikeville Panthers coming from a half-time deficit to once again come away with the state football crown. Their opponent, the Harrodsburg Panthers, proved to be one of the toughest foes of the season.

The 1988-1989 football team was responsible for memories that people of all ages will remember from days to come; from the Pike County Bowl victory at W.C. Hambley Athletic Complex to the State Finals victory at Cardinal Stadium, this was definitely a team to remember.

Maybe the support and enthusiasm of the town could best be explained through the sign that was displayed on U.S. 23 — the road to Louisville:

"Best in State, Two years straight, Last one out close the gate."

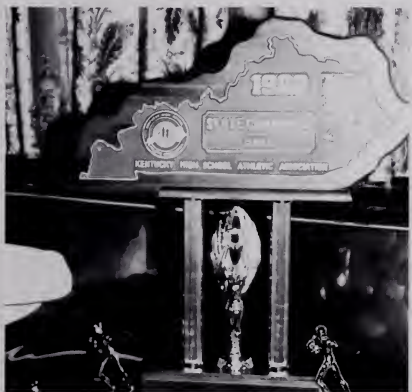

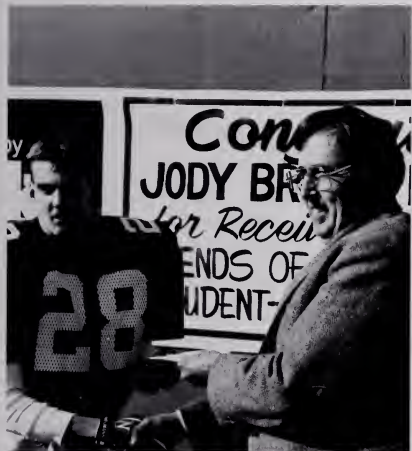

Congratulations 1988-89 football team and thanks for the memories!!

The seniors are ready to show the "Power of the Paw".

Looking great at Cardinal Stadium.

Basketball

The 1988-89 basketball team was no exception to the Panther Quest: Be the Best. Under the direction of new head coach, Ken Trivette, son of legendary PHS coach John Bill Trivette, the basketball team compiled a winning record of 18-11.

Although the record could speak for itself, various members of the team were awarded for their outstanding playing ability. Johnny Hale, a junior, was selected for the All-District Team and was also one of the best three-point shooters in the state. Brian Wilson, a junior transfer, was nominated for both the All-District Team and the all-Tournament team at the Pikeville Invitational Tournament. Chris Smith, a sophomore, was also named to the 59th District All-Tournament Team. Chris Slater, a senior, made the All-District, All-Region, and the All-PIT Team. He was selected as an Honorable Mention All-State Candidate and was also nominated to participate with the McDonald's All-American High School Basketball team.

It is apparent that Pikeville had some great talent from the underclassmen, but the seniors, with their confidence and experience, helped lead Pikeville to a winning season. Seniors for the 1988-89 year was Chris Slater, Jody Brown, Tim McNamee, and Jon Blackburn.

Pikeville's winning season was made even more special by a P.I.T. championship, the first one in fourteen years.

The end of the season was topped off by a victory over Virgie in the 59th District Tournament Finals.

Congratulations Coach Trivette, Coach Garris, and Coach Thomas and the 1988-89 basketball team on your winning season and your part in the Panther Quest: Be the Best.

Cheerleading

The PHS Varsity Cheerleaders had a very strenuous year. Not only did the girls cheer the football team to their second State Championship and the Boys' Basketball team to a Regional win, they also found time for several competitions.

Their year started off at summer camp where they were named UCA Camp Champions. The girls attended the annual competition held at King's Island where they were finalists.

During basketball season they won top honors at both district and regional divisions. This was also the case for KAPOS competition. They placed first in districts and regionals, and then third in state-at-large.

The 1988-89 Panther Cheerleaders are: seniors; Katie Baird (capt.), Margaret Gillespie (co-capt.), and Christy Damron. Juniors; Kristy Blair, Suzan Kinzer, Kelly Love, Cindy England, and Crissy Morris. Sophomores; Beth Templeman, Pam Kowalski, and Sarah Walters. Freshmen; Tracy Morris and Heather Thompson.

Beth Templeman, Kelli Love, Sarah Walters, and Heather Thompson are thrilled to be able to be presented on the floor at Rupp Arena, but are even more excited about the victory party that is scheduled at the motel afterwards.

As a part of the homecoming festivities, the cheerleaders rode and cheered in the parade. It's a wonder that with this bunch no one fell off and got left behind.

One of the highlights of the year was cheering the football team on to their second state championship.

Girls Basketball

The 1988-89 Pikeville Lady Panther team was coached by Libby White and Susan Lawson. Even though the scoreboard sometimes did not show the hard work they put in preparing for the games, the young ladies were still determined to win. At the end of the season the Lady Panthers were ready to play, but a little bad luck rolled their way when they drew Virgie for the first game of the district tournament. The team fought with determination but still came up short in the district tournament against the strong Virgie team. With no seniors, the girls are already looking ahead to big things for next year.

The team consisted of: Juniors; Elizabeth Baird, Candice Tackett, Chonda Harris, Becky Lockhart, and Kim Branham. Sophomore; Teresa Lockhart. Freshmen; Jo Layne, Robyn Bostic, Lisa Lockhart, Mouse Justice, Shelebra Kinney, Stephanie Hall, and Manager Shae Crow.

One of the highlights of the season was the weekend roadtrip the team made. The players, cheerleaders, and parents really enjoyed themselves.

Here Amy Akers, Stephanie Hall, Mouse Justice, Becky Lockhart, Shelebra Kinney, and Jo Layne show us that even having a bus for "wheels" can be fun.

Cheerleading

For the second time in three years the PHS girl's varsity cheerleaders were named Kentucky State Champions. Coach Lisa Wheeler explained that "these girls truly earned the right to be called champions. Everyone wants to win, but not everyone is willing to practice like a winner. These girls were and it showed."

The squad certainly did work hard this year. Besides cheering the JV football and Girls' Varsity basketball teams to successful seasons, squad members participated in a year long strength building program consisting of weight lifting and aerobic conditioning. In addition to this training, the girls took weekly gymnastics lessons.

The hard work paid off as the girls won awards at UCA Cheer camp held on the campus of Ole Miss and Dance camp at Memphis State. The squad participated in the King's Island Cheerleading Championships and after winning preliminaries, made costly mistakes in finals, earning an overall third place. The girls were named 59th district KAPOS Champions, 59th district tournament champions, 15th regional champions, and finally Kentucky State Champions. For this achievement, the squad was covered in local newspapers, the Lexington Herald, and featured on Cawood's Comments. The girls were also awarded State Championship rings by the Board of Education.

Band

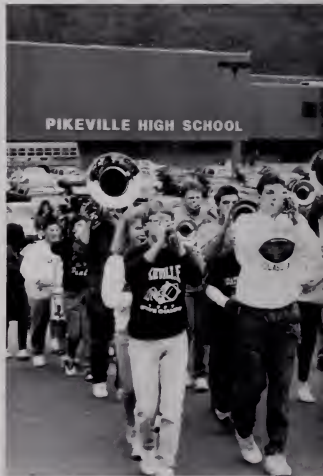

The Pikeville Marching Panthers had an exciting and a very successful season. The Marching Panthers were undefeated in their class and also took class AA first places. They received eight superiors and three overall grand championships. The band also received the honor of being names state runner-up in class A, held at Western Kentucky University. Band director Stephen Rice said, "The year was a success not because of the awards we received, but because we exceeded all goals and expectations set. With 23 rookies, this year has been a great accomplishment."

The leadership of Girls Varsity Cheerleading Caption Cissy Roberts was instrumental in helping the squad attain their 2nd State Championship in three years. Here, Cissy and her squad proudly accept their awards.

With Coach Trivette assisting, Coach Allara presents outstanding running back, Greg Hackney, his Senior Award. Greg and the other 23 seniors were the driving force behind the two consecutive football state championships.

Baseball

The Pikeville Baseball team had another excellent season. Their record for 1989 was 13-13. Early in the season Pikeville knocked off N.C. Napier, one of the top teams in the state. Coaches David Thomas and Steve Priode led the Panthers into District Tournament action, and of course, Pikeville stomped the Virgie Eagles with a score of 6 to 2. This was their 12th consecutive District Championship victory.

Golf

The PHS golfers had a very busy spring. They proudly finished their season with a 14-2 record. This shows that their long, hot hours of practice were all worth the sweat. The top four golfers for 1989 were: Luke Minor, Scott Kreutzer, Grover Justice, and Bruce Walters.

The team was also successful when participating in non-regional competitions. In the Clark County Invitational the Panthers placed in the top ten and at Henry Clay they placed 13th. All this hard work paid off, especially for Luke minor and Lin Valera who both qualified for the State Finals.

DOWN QUORNILN YDSTUGO

Chris Hedges, Robert Mims, and Tracy Thacker show their Panther spirit by wearing their favorite hats.

Pikeville High's annual Homecoming Dance was the perfect way to celebrate a football victory over the Phelps Hornets. Pike High students danced the night away in the commons area to the music of popular top 40 songs. Queen Christy Damron and other members of the court were presented along with their escorts. The theme of "Hold on to the Night", a song by Richard Marx, was the perfect choice as Seniors, as well as Freshmen, enjoyed this night to remember.

Jamie Hamilton, Brittany Blair, Franka Maynard, and Scott Hobson take a rest after dancing the night away.

Doug Willett and Kristy Blair gaze into each others eyes. Could this be love?

Jonda Harris and Lee Jones show us that you don't have to be dancing to have fun.

Donald Bentley and Terri Ratliff, together again!

The 1989 Varsity Dance was once again a huge success. On Friday night the Panther basketball team played Belfry in what turned out to be an extremely exciting game. During the half-time ceremonies, the Varsity court was presented. They were: Seniors — Debbie Altman, Christy Damron, and Katie Baird; Juniors — Ashley Altman and Robyn Justice; Sophomore — Pam Kowalski; and Freshman — Sara Sanders. Miss Katie Baird was crowned Queen of the Varsity Court. Saturday night, the Varsity Dance was given by the P.H.S. Student Council. The theme of the dance was "I Wanna Have Some Fun", and fun they had!

Queen Williamson? No, but Miss Williamson looks especially lovely in Katie's crown.

Senior attendant, Debbie Altman and her escort, Kevin Arnold, enjoy a night of fun.

Queen Katie Baird, John Pinson, Sr. attendant Christy Damron, and Jody Brown feel like royalty as they are presented for Varsity Court.

1989 Jr./Sr. Prom

This year's Junior/Senior Banquet and Prom were once again huge successes. The Banquet was held at the Green Meadows Country Club and Chris Hedges and Jody Brown read the wills. Robert Mims and John Pinson read the prophosies.

The Prom was breathtaking. The black and white streamers turned the PHS commons area into a prom-time wonderland. The theme was "Never Say Goodbye". The 1989 Prom court consisted of: Franka Maynard, Greg Hackney, Christy Damron, Jody Brown, Michelle Harmon, Tim McNamee, Debbie Altman, Chris Hedges, Katie Baird, and John Pinson. The 1989 Prom King and Queen were Jody Brown and Debbie Altman.

Margaret Gillespie and Heather Robinson prepare themselves for the dreaded wills and prophosies.

Virgil Ray, Donald Bentley, and Terri Ratliff look fabulous. Wait a minute Donald, I thought Terri was your girlfriend.

Staci Croslin, Shannon Smith, Christy Damron, and Margaret Gillespie are all dressed up with no where to go. Hey girls, what about the banquet?

Christy Damron and Jody Brown prepare to be presented on prom court.

Mr. Tom Swartz crowns the prom King and Queen: Miss Debbie Altman and Mr. Jody Brown.

"Never Say Goodbye"

Jason Howard and Ashley Altman play the Newlywed Game. Uh oh Jason, looks like you're in trouble.

This year a new tradition was made at PHS Prom. It was called Project Prom and it was a huge success. Project Prom began at 1:00, after prom and lasted until 6:30 the next morning. The attendants received $500 in our own "project prom money". During the course of the night, more money was made by playing games such as "The Newlywed Game", "Wheel of Fortune", Bingo, Craps, Blackjack, "Family Feud", and "Jeopardy". At various times during the night small prizes were auctioned off and at the end of the evening there were more expensive and extravagant prizes auctioned off. Hopefully the tradition will continue and grow.

As the night goes on, couples dance their hearts out.

John Pinson and Peter Grigsby know they look great in their tuxedos. Too bad you have to take them back boys.

Tracy Thacker, Phillip McCoy, Christy Damron, Shannon Smith, and Donna Anderson wait for the chance to steal the bank while playing family feud.

This year the Pikeville High School Speech and Drama Club presented to the public two plays, "Happy Days and The Pattern is Broken". The performers practiced long hours and put a tremendous amount of work toward making these plays a huge success. The members of the cast of "The Pattern is Broken" include: Beth Friend — Huffy, Matt Justice — Coop, Donna Anderson — Bonnie, Tracy Thacker — Brian. The cast of "Happy Days" include: Eric Melton — Fonzie, Neil Salyer — Richie, Donald Tackett — Chachie, Greg Hall — Potsie, Steve Slone — Ralph, John Pinson — Al, Shannon Smith — Joanie, Debbie Altman — Betty, Misty Daniels — Lori Beth, Suzan Kinzer — Gloria, Shae Crow — Jenny, Kristina Deskins — Cynthia, Della Justice — Hilda, Mike Bartley — Mr. Cunningham, Tiffany Potter — Mrs. Cunningham, and Shelly Hall — Abigail Hawkins.

The plays were performed for the Elementary school and there were also two night time performances. Thanks to the cast and stage crew of "Happy Days" and "The Pattern is Broken", this year's plays were a huge success.

The "Happy Days" cast takes one last bow.

Tracy Thacker and Donna Anderson in "The Pattern is Broken".

The hustle and bustle of acting life is about to pay off. It's showtime!!

"Let me think, what do I want to sing now?" says Misty Daniels.

"We did it!" says Shannon Smith, Beth Friend, and Tracy Thacker.

Donald Tackett knows who his lollipop is.

Debbie Altman gives Steve Slone a token of her appreciation.

Jr. High Cheerleading

In addition to supporting the Junior High football and basketball teams, the Junior High Cheerleaders had a successful year of their own. The girls attended UCA camp at U.K. this summer where they won the cheer award.

After camp, the squad participated in competition at Kings Island where they were named a Top 10 finalist. During Spring Break, the girls competed in the County-at-Large competition and were awarded three trophies: 1st place gymnastics cheer, 1st place plain cheer, and runner-up in pom-pom. And for the third consecutive year the squad was named the overall county champions.

Jr. High — Making The Grade

ELEMENTARY

Sixth graders were "busy, busy, busy" this year with outings such as plays, contests, and cheering on the high school at Pep rallies.

They visited PHS Jr. High and ate lunch. They also attended an end of the year picnic at the Mini Park.

Sixth graders were dazzles by High School performances such as, "The Pattern is Broken" and "Happy Days". Competition was stiff as they competed in the "neatest row contest". Last but not least they cheered the football team on to state and the basketball team on to Region. With such a frenzy of activities they have still managed to stay on top of it all. Now as they grow older and move upward they can look back with much pride at their accomplishments.

Too late to hide it Angie. We caught you!!!

Introducing the four most eligible bachelors in the sixth grade: Mark McCoy, Ben Wagner, Rory Hall, and Ben Ramsey. Ladies take you pick!!

Mrs. Mahan's language arts class read several novels this year. We caught the class studying The Lion, The Witch, and The Wardrobe!

Wishing they could roam the halls with the photographer, these sixth graders respond, "Are we having fun yet?"

Ben Cassidy can't believe he's misread the menu, "Are we really having pizzagheti today?!"

Arthur Hartsock heads the 6th grade welcome wagon group.

Mrs. Trivette knows this student needs help when she sees that in the first step of her reading problem $2 \times 2 = 6$

Has Mrs. Mahan hypnotized this group or are they always this attentive?

What is fifth grade? ... a place for having fun as well as a place to work. Fifth grade stresses academic excellence, outstanding school spirit all in a family like atmosphere. Fifth graders have fun with pizza parties, lip syncs and school related field trips.

Kitty Branham and Amy Johnson both like recess, but sometimes it gets a little chilly.

Preparing For The Future

This year's third graders were kept buzzing with their busy schedule. Along with the "3 R's", they studied social studies, science, and health. A new aspect of learning introduced this year was computers. It's never too early to prepare for the future! Many third graders entered exhibits in the Science Fair and several won blue ribbons for their outstanding projects. Cocurricular activities included music, physical education, library, and art.

Spirited Second Graders

Second grade offers many new and exciting learning experiences. Students get their first "taste" of real school work with cursive writing, multiplication tables, and learning to change classes. There is also an emphasis on drama as in this year's Thanksgiving production of "The Mystery of Turkey-Lurkey".

1988-89 was an enjoyable year for our second graders. The students celebrated the 24th Olympiad with their own mini-Olympics. They also participated in fire prevention week and a presentation from Ky. Power Co. The class took field trips to Pikeville College Skills Nursing Lab, the post office, and perhaps the most exciting, Mr. Gatti's for National Pizza Week.

Jay Christensen wins "Fisherman of the Year" while studying properties of magnetism in science.

These first graders have learned reading foundations, how to add and subtract, and all about different animals. They even took a trip to the pet store! One of the highlights of the year was when they took a journey through Mr. Gatti's. They were shown all the equipment used to make pizza. The best part was they got to make and eat their own pizza!!!

These kindergarteners have really worked hard this year. They learned the basic foundations of school. They also have time to color and paint to enrich their artistic values. Some highlights of the day are playtime and recess, a time to take a break from it all. But the most fun they have is playing dress-up. They love being able to socialize and make new friends.

Winners!

In our eyes and our hearts!

This years Special Olympics sponsored by the Pikeville Rotary Club and helped be several churches and civic groups was an exciting event for many youth in the area. The Pikeville Special Olympians not only participated in the events at the Bob Amos track, they also attended competitions in bowling. The athletes also visited the Kentucky Horse Park, malls, and were able to meet Pee Wee Herman.

Here we see David Meeks and his good friend, Pee Wee Herman. Now remember, the word for the day is FUN!!

Adam Blankenship, Angela Blankenship, Ireland Slone, Tommy Wheeler, and David Meeks display their medals from the days events.

Ireland Slone stands before the crowd as the Gold Medalist in the bowling competitions.

Bernadetta Goss proudly runs the Special Olympics torch around the track before the day of fun and excitement began.

Above: Connie Combs, the coach and director of the area games, looks very happy since all her hard work is paying off so well. Everyone involved felt the day was a complete success, which is partially due to Connie's work and planning. Below: Thomas Cole is taking a break from the strenuous activity of the day to watch one of the races! Let's Go Pikeville!

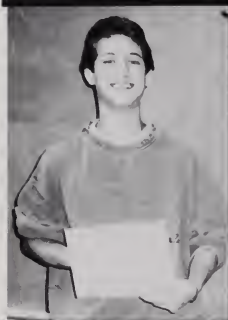

Your musical endeavors have always brought us happiness. We love you. Congratulations, Dad and Mom.

We are so very proud of you. Be all that you can be.

Good luck and may you be successful throughout life. Dad.

Congratulations on your many accomplishments but remember, you've only just begun!

As the editor of the yearbook and also a graduate of this year, it is hard to believe my turn has come and gone. As we shaped the yearbook together I often reflected on the years to come and the memories it would bring to so many. It was our main goal that we make those memories the best of times.

I'm greatly appreciative of the yearbook staff who diligently worked many long hours in preparing this year's yearbook. Also my special gratitude to Lisa Wheeler for without her expertise, encouragement, and love we could never have accomplished our goal. To Debbie Altman color editor, Pam Goble advertisement editor, Millie Mims typist, and Becky Lockhart layout editor a special thanks, these are the special people who always kept the wheels turning. Saving the best for last I want to thank my mom and my dad for their love and support throughout my high school years, "Thanks, I love you both very much!"

I hope that this book will bring my graduating class and all other students of Pikeville High beautiful and happy memories.

God Bless You All,
Shannon Neeley, Editor
