Many students go beyond the classroom to expand their knowledge and help the community. These future leaders manage to excel in their respective areas of interest, receiving scholarships and valuable life skills along the way.

(top right:) While attending the Governor's School for the Arts, Crystal Kanney poses as the "cover girl" for a magazine. (top left:) Matt Ray and Ben Carter slyly smile at the camera and think to themselves, "We're smarter than you" after being honored for their outstanding scores on the Kentucky Occupational Skills Standards Test. (bottom right:) Anu Mahalingashetty spent five intensive weeks studying science and law at the Governor's Scholar Program in Northern Kentucky University.

An Artistic Success

Transylvania gets high marks for hosting the 2000 Governor's School for the Arts

by William A. Bowden

A visitor to Transylvania campus this summer might have encountered musicians practicing in the elevator of Mitchell Fine Arts Center, actors and dancers giving an impromptu performance on the sidewalk by the library, or artists sketching scenes in Girard Park. Such was the uninhibited exuberance of the 200 high school students from 50 Kentucky counties who attended the 2000 Governor's School for the Arts, held June 25-July 15. No place on campus was immune from being turned into rehearsal or performance space, given the creative energy and spontaneous personalities of the students and their teachers.

Beyond

Time endures yet

As the years go by we will look back and remember these precious moments, the moments when worry and stress were words unknown. These are days frozen in time making us forever young.

(top, left)-"That's my crown!" exclaims Stephanie Cline as Josh Anderson checks out the babe in the front row. (top, right)-"Jamie, I really did try on your basketball. I'm sorry I'm not much of an artist," says Katie Davis. (middle)-Katie Lynch ponders her evening schedule as Brittney Hall and Kandice Hamilton graciously accept their awards. (bottom)-It's hoop dreams for Don Paul Branham, Dave Cecil, Drew Justice, Tyler Friend, and Brad Hall.

that love has made!

Have you ever had one of those moments where you pray no one was looking? Well, surprise, you're on SPY CAM! The yearbook staff went to great lengths to catch people in action when they least expected it. Watch out, you never know where we might be next!

Hidden Talents

Everyone possesses a special talent. Whether it's singing, dancing, or playing a sport, you can always count on that little something that separates you from the rest. The kids at PHS constantly excel in what they do best!

FCA enjoyed yet another wonderful year with various Christ-centered service projects for the community. The club met regularly to share their faith with others. A major accomplishment of the FCA this year was beginning daily prayer in the morning before the first bell rang. Members enjoyed fellowship with others during the Mountain Crusade for Christ early in the school year and during the State Convention at Harrison County High School.

(top) Dave Cecil and Blair Robinson take some time out of their routine to participate in daily prayer before school begins.

The Girls Varsity cheerleaders had a memorable season this year. They learned many valuable lessons such as working as a team and overcoming obstacles. The girls went to several competitions to show their stuff. They started off with cheerleading camp at the University of Alabama. Throughout the year, they went to Kings Island, Class A State, UCA Region, UCA Nationals, KAPOs Region and KAPOs State. This was the first time in several years that the squad had won KAPOs State and the 10th consecutive year that they have won Class A State. W.A.Y. TO GO GIRLS!!!
